Opportunities and challenges for leading producers

Asian Automotive Textiles: Opportunities and challenges for leading producers provides a unique reference resource of the automotive textile industry in 10 Asian countries, including China, Japan, India, South Korea, Thailand, Taiwan, Indonesia, Iran, Pakistan and Malaysia. These economies produce and consume more than 95% of the Asian automotive textile market.

This new report provides the latest available commercial information on leading automotive textile producers in Asia and an in-depth analysis of the current business environment affecting the region's automotive textile sector. It identifies strengths, weaknesses and strategic challenges enabling manufacturers, trading companies and investors to make critical decisions and locate opportunities in this rapidly growing market.

Written by Chen Nan Yang, this in-depth report, with around 220 pages and 80 tables:

- examines the Asian automobile industry and market
- explores the outlook for the Asian automotive textiles industry
- describes problems and highlights strategic plans
- identifies investment and business opportunities

With developed markets at saturation point, Asia is now the world's fastest growing region for automobiles and automotive textiles, with China, India and ASEAN at the forefront.

Low-cost vehicles are driving the growth of the global automotive industry in the emerging economies of China and India, offering huge opportunities for global players in these markets. Meanwhile, the ASEAN countries, such as Thailand, the Philippines, Indonesia and Malaysia, are expected to be new potential markets for automotive textiles following the creation of the ASEAN Free Trade Area (AFTA).

In the long term, cheap financing and price discounts, rising income levels and infrastructure developments will drive growth in most Asian automotive markets, with automotive textiles destined to follow these key trends.

This new report will help you to identify:

- key trends in the Asian automobile industry
- the current structure of the Asian market for automotive textiles
- principal drivers for automotive textiles in Asia
- future trends in Asian automotive textiles
- strategies of major producers
- business and investment opportunities
